Almost without exception, I dread, I trust we can all relate to that. Nuff said. Dealing with the Van Horn Mazda dealership was entirely different, and refreshingly so. I would like to thank Katie, Alyssa, and Aron for, quite frankly, their integrity. They delivered exactly as they said they would. I'm impressed with their professionalism. That was my experience. Would it not be nice if all dealerships had the same level of integrity and professionalism! Number of Previous Owners: Owner count not provided. Odometer is miles below market average! Russ Darrow pre-owned vehicles come standard with one key. If we received more than one key from the previous owner, we include them. Additional keys, as well as dealer-installed accessories, may be purchased at the time of sale. Russ Darrow Mazda conducts criminal activity. Avoid this dealership and Buyer Beware!!! I inspected the car and test drove it and started to negotiate pricing on it. The sales representative that I dealt with, Jose, claimed that the Certified warranty that was clearly shown in Russ Darrow's online advertising I have a screen capture of the actual online ad really meant that the ad should've read that it was "Pre-Certified". I was appalled to the say the least and told Jose that Russ Darrow is price gouging and doing false advertising. He was argumentative for about 10 minutes and would not admit that Russ Darrow was wrong. I was dismayed to say the least that they would think I'm naive and gullible to even consider paying for a Certified warranty. There was clear intent that Russ Darrow was going to price gouge me for Certified warranty that is included within the price of the car. Mazda called Russ Darrow's action "ludicrous" and they opened a case file and gave me a reference number. I picked up the vehicle on Thursday, July 2nd. However, it was until later that day when I stopped to fill up with gas miles away, that I noticed Russ Darrow had removed the splash guards from my vehicle prior to delivery and never told me. They committed theft by removing accessories off of the vehicle without my knowledge. Luckily I downloaded all images of the car off of their website and emailed Russ Darrow on Friday, July 3rd. They advised me to bring the car back so they could put back on the splash guards. I'm also experiencing a constant "Low Engine Coolant" warning light coming on consistently every day. It's clear that they removed crucial engine fluids at the same time they removed the splash guards without my knowledge. I will be following up with Mazda North America to further my complaint. I no longer feel safe driving this vehicle as I don't know what other criminal actions Russ Darrow committed against me in retaliation for filing a price gouging complaint with Mazda of North America. Don Thurber, sales manager and Jose Santiago are the typical sleazy used car guys â€" they're total cliches of what you think of a deceptive creepy used car guy. Avoid Russ Darrow dealerships altogether unless you want a lot of stress and want to be defrauded and deceived. You won't regret it. Recent Arrival! People are used to seeing green coolant. Nowadays, people assume that green coolant is the traditional stuff your old Bronco used to have. Well no. As it turns out, Mazda has used various coolant colors throughout the years making it all very confusing. The Mazda coolant is designed for long life and supposedly contains all the right ingredients for your Miata. No silicates and no borates. This coolant is a bit hard to find. I used to buy the Mazda FL22 above from Amazon, but recently they stopped carrying it. I did a bit of research and according to various Miata forums, the Ravenol below is a good replacement. Supposedly, the Ford coolant can be had for cheaper than the Mazda branded stuff. This stuff is probably fine as compared to the Mazda and Ford fluid and costs half as much. Given the rarity of a complete cooling system flush, I would not use this coolant for a full fluid replacement just to save a few bucks. However, if budget is really a concern, then it could be a good option. This advice is based on personal research for my own car. Also remember that whatever is left in your cooling system, be it water or old coolant after a flush will affect your mix and mix ratio â€" so keep that in mind.
